

Protect your pet from toxins

Many substances that are safe for people may be toxic to pets. To care for your pet's health, be aware of these hidden dangers.

- Over-the-counter and prescription medications can be highly toxic to animals. Store them in sturdy containers that cannot be chewed through.
- Prescription animal medications are made to be tasty. Keep them well out of reach.
- Certain foods, such as chocolate, grapes, onions, and garlic, are toxic to pets.
- Products intended to kill rodents are particularly dangerous to pets. Choose pet-safe traps instead of chemicals.
- Paint, glue and cleaning products are toxic. Curious pets may mistake them for food. Keep these products safely stored and out of their reach.
- Bug spray and foggers are poisonous to pets. Because they have smaller bodies, it takes less of a product to cause problems.
- Certain house and garden plants may be toxic or irritating when consumed, depending on your pet. Check online to find out what plants are safe.
